

Effective August 19, 2019, PPL Corporation's Standards of Integrity (Standards) were streamlined to improve readability and comprehension and to provide a clearer roadmap to associated corporate policies.

All topics covered in the existing Standards were retained but have been reorganized and are now presented in a simpler, shorter format. In addition to these administrative and stylistic updates, the revised Standards include a new section on human rights. This section contains a commitment to respect the human rights of our employees and states PPL's expectation that our suppliers will similarly respect human rights as well, pursuant to PPL's Supplier Code of Conduct. This new section also expresses PPL's support of each employee's freedom of association and right to form or join a union and engage in union activities.